

PRETEND THIS WILL HAPPEN

OPEN CALL for Vol. 2

After our first pop-up exhibition in the living room of the Dessewffy utca flat, we would like to open up the platform for people who would be interested in showing their artworks in any artistic medium.

Please send us a short introduction or CV and a proposed artwork you would like to realize in/for the space!

Make sure you can make the dates and respect the following guidelines:

Date of the exhibition: 16th November 2018 // 7pm

Deadline for submission: 9th November 2018 // 7pm

Space: a living room, around 25 sqm, Dessewffy utca (can be visited before)

Requirements: work can be any medium, but it shouldn't take over the whole space, preferably recent artworks

Artist fees and subsidies cannot be paid, everyone is responsible for the setup of their own work and bringing the necessary tools.

If we would be so lucky to get over 7 proposals, we would group the works by a certain theme and make sure to include those left out in the next exhibition!

PRETEND THIS WILL HAPPEN is a platform and a recently founded collective. Most of us are international art students, motivated to organize a series of art exhibitions lasting one night only, in an unconventional, welcoming, pop-up living-room space.

PRETEND THIS WILL HAPPEN is an opportunity for artists to experiment across disciplines and to create a discursive field around their works. Artists involved will be challenged with creating an artwork for a very determining space which encourages people to get together and discuss what's on view.
